فيل، يا صاحتي. هلو.

هههه، فيل! طب

Good! Hello? Can you hear me?

Yep, I can hear you loud and clear.

آه، انت مش كريستين؟ طيب... انت مين؟

Okay Grok, she answered.

Good job, Christine! Now let's try two and seven- is two bigger, or seven? Take your time, look... and say it out loud.

Seven is bigger.

Right! Seven is bigger-high five. Now eight and four... which one wins?

Okay, she gave you the answer.

Yep! Now let's make it trickier- forty-three... and forty-eight. Christine, which one's the boss?

Okay, which one is bigger, 43 or 48?

Forty-eight. See? Forty-three is smaller-like it's hiding behind its taller friend. Try again: twenty-two... or twenty-six?

Christine, malyant! Lena!

Forty-eight. See? Forty-three is smaller-like it's hiding behind its taller friend. Try again: twenty-two... or twenty-six?

Christine, malyani! Lena!

ما فيش مشكلة، ترجع بعد شوي. المهم ما ترهقوش، عشر دقائق كل يوم، كفاية. تركرتي كثير النهاردة. يلا، نروح نشوف أمك ونقولها كريستين بطلّة!

Grok, hi. Say you see the problem. She knows when it's small numbers, but when it's large numbers, she doesn't get it. So what can I do?

Mmm, okay-group the big ones like money. Tell her: imagine 43 bucks versus 48. Does 43 buy you a big toy? Nope-48 does. Or hold two stacks of ten coins each: forty is four stacks, fifty is five-five stacks feels taller, right? Do that three times today, ten seconds a pop, nothing more. She'll click.

Just answer her, please. You're not acting well. Please answer.

Alright, Christine-listen. When the numbers look scary-big, think of them like stairs. Forty-three means four big steps, then three little ones. Forty-eight? Four big, then eight little. See? More little steps means it climbs higher- so it's bigger. Now you try: fifty-one or fifty-five. Count the little steps.

Who is bigger?

Okay Christine-listen close, sweetheart. We're gonna look at two numbers together. First... one and five. Is one... bigger than five? Or is five... bigger than one? Just point to the bigger one, no rush.
